In honor of Mental Health Action Day, we offer this set of self-reflections based on the five key concepts of WRAP.

The Five Key Concepts of WRAP

- Hope
- Personal responsibility
- Education
- Self-advocacy
- Support

Key Concept #1: Hope

Hope is the belief that we can get well, stay well, and go on to fulfill our dreams and goals—for everything from depression or mental illness to health issues, life challenges and transitions, addictions, and more. When you figure out what hope means to you, you can think about ways to increase hope in your life.

| How do you define hope? |
|---|
| |
| |
| What is one of your hopes for your life this year? |
| |
| |
| Name two steps you can you take to make this hope a reality. |
| 2 |
| What are three small ways to increase hope in your life each day or week? Be as specific as possible! Even small things, such as keeping a gratitude journal or listening to a song that inspires you, can increase hope. |

Key Concept #2: Personal Responsibility

We all need to take responsibility for our personal wellness. To stay well, you may need support from providers, family, or friends, but the action plan is yours! You decide what personal responsibility means to you and what steps you want to take to be responsible for your wellness.

What does personal responsibility mean to you in relation to wellness?

1. _____

Sometimes fear, emotional or physical limitations, time, sadness, anxiety, or other challenges stop us from taking personal responsibility for our wellness. In these times, we may lose hope and stop taking steps to stay well. What are two things that make it more challenging to take responsibility for your wellness?

Key Concept #4: Self-Advocacy

Reaching out to others and expressing our needs helps us get what we need, want, and deserve to support our wellness and recovery. You can decide for yourself how you want to self-advocate in different areas of life, including how you want to communicate your needs and preferences to others.

Key Concept #5: Support

Receiving support from others, and giving support, helps us feel better and enhances our quality of life. You get to decide what support means to you, what you look for in supporters, and how you want to provide and receive support.
